On December 1, the Small Business Administration (SBA) released public data about Paycheck Protection Program borrowers—specifically, the borrowers' names, addresses, exact loan amounts and who their PPP lenders were. This was done by court order following lawsuits brought by media organizations seeking the data.

We want you to know that we, as your bank, did not publicly disclose the data and played no role in the court decision. Our commitment to protect your privacy is paramount, and we follow all applicable laws and regulations.

Unfortunately, we have heard that some third-party businesses are using information from the court-ordered data release to market themselves to PPP customers. Be wary of companies you have never heard of, especially those who initiate unsolicited contact. These communications may reference Crest Savings Bank's name and may even imply that we have some kind of relationship. We advise you not to share any private information or details of your PPP loan with businesses or individuals not affiliated with Crest Savings Bank.

You should be aware that Crest Savings Bank will communicate with you directly about your PPP loan and the forgiveness process. If you have any doubt, please contact us at ppp@crestsavings.com.

As always, our commitment is to your business' financial health. We will continue to support our small business customers and do our part to help spur the economic recovery and limit the economic damage from this pandemic. We thank you for your ongoing partnership.
